

A Quick LOOK at the Writing Process

Observing: question and notice details in the world

Pay special attention to the little details in your surroundings and think about something you can write about in class.

Brainstorming/Prewriting

Brainstorm a list of all the things you noticed that you could write about. Choose a few from your list and add a few more details or ideas to each.

You must engage in frequent and authentic writing to truly understand the process. There are no exceptions.